Choirs—St. David's Congregation Settles Difficulties With Mrs. Kennerly and All Ls Well Again.

The loid and trouble-breeding question of high and low service is again agitating Episcopal circles in this city. This time the innovations in the service, which have been provocative of a mild dissension, have been more than the confirmed a class of thirteen and provocative of a mild dissension, have been provocative of a mild dissension, have been brewing for sometime, but the knowledge of it was kept confined among the congregation until recently, when it began to be talked about on the outside. It originated it seems with the adoption of the boy choir. Three of the vestrymen, Messra. Wallace Delafield, Jos. W. Branch and Western Bascome, were not favorably disposed to the boy choir if real reasons for their resignations, however, were kept quiet. With the introduction of the boy choir came changes in the evening service. Instead of the congregation singing the responses and chanted the creed. During the offertory the full choir will sing Stainer's "Grieve Not the Holy Spirit of God." The service will close with the ever-popular "Onward Christian Soldiers." Mrs. Gallowsy, the organist, will give a short organ recital from 7:30 to 7:45 to entertain the early comers.

The Split Over in St. David's

The whirlwind that passed through the con gregation of St. David's Episcopal Church, 3909 South Broadway, has passed by and left no scars. The story of the troubles in which no scars. The story of the troubles in which the little parish was engaged was told exciusively in the Post-Disparch about ten days ago. The church was formerly a dwelling house, but the partition walls were knocked out and quite a nice little church made. It was a part of the property of Mrs. Kennerly, a wealthy and generous widow, who gave it to the Episcopal Church, and as is the custom loanch cases, gave the Bishop a deed for it. Mr. Furniss acted as lay reader for a while and then Mr. Gilbert Elliott conducted the services. A convergation of about fifty families was gathered and they concluded to call a minister. Mrs. Kennerly said she would give $500 a year towards the minister's saiary and Bishop Tuttle sens Rev. Mr. De Wolf. Everything moved aiong nicely until Mrs. Kennerly began to complain that though 4 most of the members of the congregation were low church in their inclinations, Mr. De Wolf was introducing ritualistic methods to which she decidedly objected. She wanted the old prayer-book used without the amendments, or rather the additions, that were made to it by the general convention. She did not like the choral features that were introduced, chanting the amens and intoning parts of the service. She was opposed to

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 31.—It was rumored here last night that a terrible steamship diser had occurred in the guif during the day. The story goes that the Beaver line steamer Lake Ontario, Capt. Campbell, which left here on Wednesday for Liverpool with a full list of cabin passengers, including many of the lead-ing citizens of this city, had gone down with all hands. From the last reports of the ves-sel received here she should have been in the neighborhood of Anticosti yesterday, and as it is known that a terrible storm has been raging in the gulf for the last few days the is anticipated. The rumor of the disaster seems well authenticated. The steam ship, Lake Ontario, was a ship of 2,933 tons, and was built at Sunderland in 1887. She was owned by the Canada Shipping Co. (limited).

The Barge Bavaria's Crew Lost. WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 81 .- Further par ticulars have been received about the barge Bavaria, one of the Calvins boats that was re-ported stranded on Galloup Island. It seems ported stranded on Galloup Island. It seems that when the barge struck the shoal the crew, eight persons in all, took to a small boat, but on account of the terrific gale they could not reach the island and were lost. They were seen at one time by a passing tug, clinging to their yaw!. The tug could not render any assistance. The yawl was afterwards seen floating with no person in her. Permission had to be obtained from the Treasury Department at Washington before any wrecking assistance could be sent to the barge. When the barge was reached they found her in very good condition with scarcely any water in her. The clothes belonging to the men wery dry and had the men been aboard of the barge all would have been saved.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 31.-A special to the Evening Wisconsin from Sand Beach, Mich., says: Yesterday's storm was the most severe since the December storm in 1885. The Canadian steamer Chamberiain came in about 5 o'clock to-day, with her gangways stove in and her fires out. She was helped up to the pier by harbor tugs. Her consert, the Victor, ran ashore south of here. The life-saving crew procured a team and took the surf boat and Lyle gun apparatus down and rescued five men, one woman and alittle girl. AN IMPORTANT DECISION IN REGARD TO SUNDAY QUESTION.

uri Amateur Athletic Associatio Must Pay the Fair Grounds $1,000 for a Rainy Sunday's Rent—Other Opinions of Interest—Wants a Divorce—Legal Notes, Gossip and News.

Another batch of decisions were hande down by the Court of Appeals this morning. The most interesting among them is one in th case of the Fair Grounds Association against the Missouri Amateur Athletic Asso The suit grows out of the tournament given at he Fair Grounds, Sunday, September 25, 1887. A few weeks before that date the Athletic Association made a contract with the Fair Grounds Association to pay $1,000 for the rent of the grounds that day. The tourna-ment was a fizzle. The rain fell and the crowd was very small. The athletes refused to pay the rent of the grounds for the day, saying the contract was void as it was made for an event which took place on Sunday, and as all "games" on Sunday were against the law hey could not pay the bill. Suit was brough and the jury held the defendants responsible for the rent and awarded the Fair Asso ciation judgement for $1,035. A mo-tion for a new trial was made and Judge Dillon affirmed the verdict of the jury, saying he thought the law meant only games of chance, not sports. The case was appealed and now the judges of the Court of Appeals say: "Unless, therefore, we have some statute prohibiting 'athletic games and sports' on Sunday, this petition is not bad by reason of the fact that it counts reason of the fact that it counts upon a contract involving the doing of some prohibited act. No statute has been pointed out to us which prohibits in terms an exhibition of athletic games and sports on Sunday and we know of the existence of no such statute. This court is of the opinion that this prohibition is against games of chance or other games of immoral tendency, and that it does not involve a prohibition of athletic games or sports which tend to the physical development of the youth and are rather to be encouraged than discouraged. The word "game" the court thinks means "a device or play the terms of which are that the winner shall receive something of value from the loser; the act of playing a game for stakes." The judgment is affirmed and the case is certified to the Supreme Court for final disposition, in pursuance of the constitutional mandate.

The Breeders Beyond the Missouri to Invade Eastern Tracks-An Old Kentucky Horseman's Views on the Present Style of Racers-Strength Sacrificed to Speed watching the performances of the horses entered in the had a very encouraging effect upon the breeders of racing stock in the Northwest, and there is every indication that by August a considerable number of the speedlest horses of the section of the country lying west of the Missouri River will be sent to compete on Eastern tracks.

DEGENERACY OF KENTUCKY STOCK. "I am by birth a Kentuckian, and was taught to believe that the Kentucky thoroughbreds, raised in the blue grass district, were the best racers in the world. I still hold this opinion, but with several important qualifications. Of. course Spokane is an exceptional animal; we all recognize that his performance cannot be regarded as typical of the abilities of the trans-Missouri horses, but we believe that our average racers can more than hold their own, horse for horse, with the Kentuckians, especially over a long course, and a track following the natural undulations of the We intend to try it this year, and to make a still more vigorous attempt to win

"From what I have seen during the pas

"From what I have seen during the past month I am not inclined to believe that our horses can hold their own with the best of the Kentuckians and New Yorkers at short distances and over a dry track. Our stock has not the length of limb necessary to speeding on short courses with light weights up, and I am more convinced than ever that in stride and spurting ability the Kentucky stock is the best in the world. Even Spokane in the matter of stride was decidedly inferior to some of his opponents. But when it comes to bottom and quickness in handling themselves, I believe that our Montana and Wyoming horses can more than hold their own.

WEEDT THOROUGHBREDS.

I have not been in Kentucky for seven years before this trip and nothing struck me more forcibly than the increasing weediness of the racers. They mature rapidly, but run ail to legs, and the average length of back must have been increased fully three inches during the past decade. This is favorable for racing for short distances and with light weights up, but renders the horses far more delicate than they used to be. The short-coupled animals like Ten Broek and Longfeilow, which used to be Kentucky's pride, are now conspicuous by their absence, being generally replaced by fast, weedy thoroughbreds, which do splendidly as 2 or 3-year-olds, but disappear after that time, and even when on the turf spend much of their time in hospital.

"The reason for this appears to me very disappear after that time, and even when on the turf spend much of their time in hospital. "The reason for this appears to me very clear. The breeders have gone in for speed at short distances, and have run to the long-legged, long-backed horses that had stride and nothing else. A saddle horse with a long back is always likely to break down, this anatomical formation being particularly favorable to kidney troubles. Then these young horses are remarkably clumsy when they have to turn curves. A quick horse would gain two or three lengths on one of those lanky 2-year-olds at every turn, but I must admit that our Western stock of the same age would more than make it up on the straight.

HARDY NORTHWESTERN STOCK.

"But where we expect to beat the Kentuckians is in the hard stomachs of our horses. If you follow the races you will find that two-thirds of the Eastern horses. If you follow the races you will find that two-thirds of the Eastern horses are not fit for many days in succession. They go wrong on the slightest provocation, and after half a season is over, over half the cracks will disappear from the turf. This delicacy is unknown among the animals raised on the bunch grass of the high plains, and our animals can run week in and week out without breaking down. What we expect is bo be defeated at first, but we hope to run our apponents to a standstill and, at the end, to carry off all the prises."

The sale of a piece of ground in the old Cote Brilliante race-course tract, a section fronting 100x180 feet situate on the north side of Ridge avenue, 50 feet west of Academy, at $15 a foot, to Eva King, is reported to-day by Thos. It was reported this morning that Mr. B. De Courcey Lindsley of the firm of Orr & Lindsley had sold his residence to H. R. There had been some negotiations with Mr. Graham about his purchasing the property, but Mr. Lindsley informed the reporter that the deal was off; he had concluded not to sell the premises.

The meeting which opens to morrow will last for thirteen racing days, closing with the races of June 15. It is the longest meeting ever held here and promises to be the most successful. The stakes are large and numerous and the purses most generous. There will be five races every day and among them will be at least one stake event. P. G. Bruce, the well-known turf writer of Lexington, Ky., will be the official secretary of the meeting, and J. B. Ferguson, Secretary of the Lexington Association, the official starter. Mr. Ferguson's work in this line at Lexington and Louisville this spring was most successful. The position of official turf correspondent will be filled by E. S. Gardner of Nashville, Tenn., who has written up all the Western meetings this season. Mr. Charles Green, President of the club, will be the presiding Judge, and W. R. Allen and L. M. Rumsey his associate Judges to-morrow. On the programme are two stake races, the great St. Louis derby, which is the third race of the day, and the Missouri steeplechase, the fifth and last event. The former closed with seventy-three entries and the latter with twelve, a very good list for a steeplechase, the fifth and last event. Of course, interest will be centered on the Derby. Like all derbies, it is for 3-year-olds over the regulation mile and a half course, with the following conditions governing: Entrance, $50 each, half forfeit or only $10 if declared by April 1, 1889, (all declarations void unless accompanied by money), with $2,500 added; the winner of any 3-year-old stake race of the value of $2,000 to carry five pounds extra; second to receive $500; third, $200 out of the stakes. It is not yet known positively what horses will start in this race, but the following are reported as almost known positively what horses will start in this race, but the following are reported as almost certain: Don Jose, Glockner, Teuton, Long Fish, Le Fremier, King Regent, Cassius, John Duffy, Heron, Boodier, The Lioness and Carlentsu. Judging from past performances, Don Jose, if in condition, will be the winner. He is a grand coit, and horsemen generally think he has a sure thing on the prize if he starts. It is said the horse's form recently has not been entirely satisfactory to his trainer, but Mr. Winter is not apt to start him to-morrow unless the animal is in every way fit. Don Jose ran second to his now deceased stable companion, the Czar, when the latter lowered the Derby record at San Franusico this spring. ran second to his now deceased gran second to his now deceased grant for the part value of the part of the part value of the part of the p Much had been expected this year of Mr. Cassidy's Longfellow colt, Long Fish, but so far the animal has not shown up particularly strong. Teuton, a son of Ten Broeck, who will start for the stake, beat Cassius and Leia May in a race at Latonia over a long course. He will, no doubt, find considerable backing. Those who have seen Tom Treagy's colt Glockner perform at the track think well of him, and the fact that he is to be ridden by Tom Kiley, who piloted Spokane in both the latter's victories over the crack Proctor Knott, will cause the betting fraternity to look upon him with more favor. Le Premier, Mr. Mukey's entry was sent over the Derby course yesterday, and performed in a manner very satisfactory to his trainer. King Regent was sick when he left Latonia, but his trainer thinks he will be all right for to-morrow's race. Carientus of the Santa Anna stables. Lucky Baidwin's horses have not been shown this spring, but in a stable as large as his and with the stock farm he has on the Pacific Coast, it is pretty safe to say that he has at least one unusually clever animal among his colts. He has six entries in the Derby here, and it is to be presumed he has selected the best of them for the race. Carientus is by Grinstead, out of Biossom, and will be ridden by the celebrated colored Jockey. Rie Murphy, on whose services Mr. Baidwin has first call. The race should be a good one and may furnish some surprises.

In the Missouri Steeplechase the expected starters are Catiline, Linguist, Voltigeur, Lijero, Uncle Dan and either Tennessee or Irish Pat of the Corrigan string, and possibly both. There are some very clever jumpers in the lot and an exciting race may be expected. The conditions are: "For all ages; $10 to accompany the nomination and $20 additional to start, with $300 added. The second horse to receive $180, the third horse $100 out of the stakes. Winner of any steeplechase or hurdle race to the value of $500 to carry 5 pounds, or two races of $500 or one of $1,000 or more to carry 10 pounds extra. Horses that have never won a steeplechase or hurdle race allowed 7 pounds. Eight to fill and four to start or no race. Full steeplechase course."

The programme for to-morrow is as follows:

lbs; if 5 years old and upward, allowed 30 lbs. One mile.

Second race, selling purse, $500, of which $75 to second and $25 to third; those entered for $2,000 to carry weight for age; then one pound allowed for each $100 less; seven furiongs.

Fourth race, purse $500, of which $75 to second and $25 to third, for 2-year-olds; those not having won a sweepstakes of the value of $700 allowed five pounds; of any value, lo pounds; five furiongs.

There are now about five hundred horses at the trace, nearly one hundred having arrived this morning. Mr. Ferguson, the starter, also got here this morning and Ira E. Bride, who has the pool privileges, has been here since yesterday.

McDonald's case went before the Supreme Court, and the decision of the Lower Court was reversed. The action before Judge Shepard this morning was simply the granting of a new and immediate trial to McGarigle, and the imposing of a fine on his plea of guilty. At the same time the States Attorney dismissed the case against Ed McDonald, engineer of the asylum, who was convicted for being concerned in the crookedness with McGarigle. The States Attorney said that as the Supreme Court had granted McDonald a new trial he was convinced that he could not be again convicted and that he had been confined in the country jail for a year and a haif, the State was willing to drop further proceedings. The orders were made, the fine and costs paid and McGarigle and McDonald were free men once more.

McGarigle's Flight. Wm. J. McGarigle, who returned to Chicago this morning has never enjoyed his exile to Canada. He was at one time Chief of Police of Chicago, and later Sheriff of Cook County.

After leaving the Sheriff's office be became superintendent of the County Hospital and was implicated in the boodling expose made about two years ago. The Grand-jury turned its attention to this institution and discovered that there was a powerful contractors' ring in control. The firms furnishing supplies testified that they were obliged to give uplarge sums in order to secure contracts and that in making their bids were obliged to take into consideration the bribe-money that it was necessary to advance. McGarigle was indicted and committed to jail, but made his escape. He secured permission from the Sheriff to visit his home, and while there asked to be allowed to take a bath. He passed through the bath-room window and disappeared. The Sheriff offered a large reward, but failed to apprehend him. It was ascertained that a vessel, commanded by one of McGarigle's blouse. Jack appears to be the favorite name, the Jacks being in a decided plurality, with Prince a good second. Jack, the horse-car dog, is licensed, the boys chipping in and paying the bill. This dog Jack does not belong to any-body so far as known, but has more friends than any other canine in this city. "Jip" is a popular name for dogs, especially for the pugs and black and tan pets. But they don't all spell it with "J." The more exclusive and aristocratic kind affect "Gyp," while "Gip" is not unknown, but is more plebelan.

The judge and the major have namesakes among the dogs. There is one Ben Harrison and one Grover Cleveland, both likely dogs, though presumably Ben's star is in the ascendant just now. Out of a list of about 400 dogs examined by the reporter there were seven named Jumbo and five named Bruno. THE GREAT EIFFEL TOWER.

From the Atlantic Monthly. The tower is spread much at the base, to enhance its stability. Perhaps its height is exaggerated by the distant view of building in the Exposition grounds. The first gallery, which consists of an immense hall, is to b used as a promenade or for restaurants. It is 230 feet from the ground. Still further up is the second gallery, about 100 feet square and at a height of 377 feet, which exceeds the aiti-tude of the following well-known structures:

Brooklyn bridge towers.

Continuing up the Eiffel tower until it has narrowed to about seventy-five feet on a side we come to a point where the four great plilars combine at about the height of the great Washington monument, the next highest known structure in the world. Only three of the following public edifices, aside from the greatest of the Egyptian pyramids, are more than half as high as the Eiffel tower.

All the wire-pulling is beneath surface and does not show, but a constant pressure is being brought to bear on the Postmaster General and he will have to reconcile several conflicting interests to make the appointment. Stowed away in pigeon holes of the appointment division at the Post-office Department are papers of seven candidates for this position. A perusal of the indorsements on the papers would reveal an interesting story of Missouri politics. At the the head of the list is Chauncey I. Filley's papers. Heat, on the contrary, when applied to the skin, reddens the part temporarily, but finally produces pallor and bloodlessness. Hot water is better than cold water for the control of hemorrhage, because it produces a final and more lasting contraction of the arteries of the part. There is no reason to suppose that heat acts differently upon the mucous membrane of the stomach than it does upon the skin. A hot drink will flush the face as a cold drink never does. We administer hot drinks to the patient in a chill because "they drive the blood to the skin." These instances point to contraction in the vessels douched by the vessels douched by the vessels douched by the hot fluid. Hot water sometimes cures dyspepsia, for the reason that in catarrh of the stomach, as in other infiammations, we have unnaturally dilated vessels and sluggish circulation, or even stagnation, of the blood. Contraction is here, as in hyperæmia elsewhere, the first step toward cure. In catarrh of the stomach, therefore, hot drinks may favor secretion and the better digestion of food.

In the primitive State, however, hot drinks were of course unknown. The animals, in winter, drink from a hole in the ice, and children do not care for hot drinks until they have been taught to use them. A conclusion to be drawn is, not to introduce children to

A third conclusion relates to milk diet. Where milk cannot be taken because it coagulates in lumps, try taking it luke-warm or hot. Ice-cold milk provokes secretion just as ice-cold water does, and this sudden out-pouring of the gastric juice coagulates the whole quantity in a mass. By giving the milk hot, on the contrary, secretion is delayed, coagulation hecurs more slowly, and a flaky curd is the result.

A fourterconclusion is not to smile supercliciously upon your friend because it hat a half-glass of ice-water before eating gives him a relish for his food.

A fourth conclusion refers to the hot water. While the douching of the digestive tract with hot water may be beneficial for a time, if persisted in after the normal circulatory equilibrium has been reached, it will invariably hrrm.* As a remedy, hot water is not harmless, and its administration should be controlled by the physician's directions just as certainly as the use of drugs.

A last conclusion refers to cerebral hyperæmia. In the condition of flushed face and mental confusion, which sometimes results from worry or overwork, try an ice-cream, if it can be digested. If not, try a water-ice, or even a half-glass of the despised ice-water. The tranquilizing effect of the cold drink as not yet perhaps received its due share of attention. The possible agency of the hot drink in the production of "American nervousness" is also suggested.

On the other hand, the reviving effect of hot water and other hot drinks in conditions of cerebral anæmia cannot be denied.

Any dictum which unqualifying says that cold drinks are good and hot drinks are bad, or that not drinks are good and cold drinks are bad, or that not drinks are good and hot drinks are bad, or that not drinks are good and not their place.

Personal experience has found that a single cup of hot coffee which is exquisitely refreshing, if it overtempts one to indulge in a second cup results in a loss of the benefit and an access of positive dis-comfort.—[ED.

IN A NUTSHELL Not less than six excellent and sufficient reasons may be given against allowing Union Market to remain as it is: It is a nuisance. It is an obstruction to business.

It is inconvenient and unpleasant buyers and dealers. It depreciates property in its neigh borhood.

It is unsightly. It does not pay the city returns in pro portion to the value of the property. Not less than six excellent and sufficient easons may be given in favor of the improvement of Union Market:

It would be an ornament. It would increase the value of property in the neighborhood. It is necessary to the business interests

f its locality. It would pay handsomely on the mone nvested.

It would greatly increase the facilities and comforts of purchasers and dealers in market products. It is demanded by the merchants immediately concerned, and is indorsed by the whole people of the city. If there are any reasons that Union Market should remain as it is and should not be improved they do not appear.

This is the Union Market question in a nut-shell. If the Municipal Assembly cannot see the advisability of immediate action the Assembly is blind or does not want to see.

> The rank and file had been led to believe that CLEVELAND had made nearly a clean sweep of the offices and filled nearly all of them with Democratic incompetents. It would have been better for the party and for the popularity of the Administration if the latter had, from the beginning put its foot on the spoils system, devoted more of its attention to more important affairs and served notice on all concerned that no office would be given to any man appearing in Washington uninvited to ask for it.

A POLITICAL movement has no reason for adopting a secret oath-bound organization unless its purposes entail work of a very dangerous and revolutionary kind. If the commission of crime be not one of the original purposes, the oath-bound secrecy favors the commission of crime under the protection of the organization and a few violent and bad men in it have it in their power to make the whole membership in greater or less degree accomplices in crimes the majority never thought of sanctioning. THE THREE-MILE LIMIT.

JURISDICTION OF THE UNITED STATES OVER BEHRING SEA.

No New Phase in the Controversy Admitt by the Treasury Department—The Rights Obtained Under the Treaty With Bussia -Decision by the Federal Court Alaska-Canada's Kick.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31 .- The question Alaskan waters relating particularly to the killing of seal has been a matter of great concern to the Treasury Department. As early nauthorized persons were killing seal in Alaskan waters, and the Secretary of the Treasury caused a notice to be published i the newspapers printed at all the Pacific ports in this country, stating that the law prohibiting seal-killing would be enforce against all comers and the penalties inflicted A similar notice has been printed every year and Congress appropriated money for tection of seal life in Alaska and the Govern tions to seize and condemn all vessels engage in this illicit business. The first quest to the extent of the jurisdiction claimed by the United States over Behring Sea was raised in 1881, and under date of April 4, 1881, the Secretary of the Treasury replied that the law prohibited the killing of any fur-bearing animal within the limits of Alaska Territory, of the waters thereof, and also on the Islands of St. Paul and St. George, or in the waters adja-

THE TREATY WITH RUSSIA. The treaty with Russia of March 30, 1867 clearly defined the boundary of the territory mentioned, extends from a line starting from the Arctic and running through Behring Strait to the north of St. Lawrence Islands. The so as to pass midway between the Island of Alton and Copper Island, of the Kornman dorski couplet or group, in the North Pacific Ocean, to meridian of 193 west longitude All the waters within that boundary to the western end of the Aleutian archipelago and Chain of Island are considered as comprised within the waters of Alaska Territory. This decision is printed in the Pacific Coast papers every year. This decision was repeated by the Treasury De partment by the late Daniel Manning on March 16, 1886. The Canadian authorities in their brief relating to the seizure of Canadian ressels in Behring Sea by our revenue cutters claimed that Secretary Boutwell had decided claimed that Secretary Boutwell had decided that the United States had no jurisdiction over Behring Sea outside of the three-mile limit. Mr. Boutwell denies this and in a letter written a few weeks ago, said; "Neither upon my recollection of facts as they were understood by me in 1872, nor upon the present reading of the correspondence do I admit the claim of Great Britain that my letter is an admission of any right adverse to the claims of the United States in the waters known as Behring Sea."

THE UNITED STATES' JURISDICTION.

Last year the question as to the right of the United States to exclusive dominion and jurisdiction over Behring Sea came before the United States District Court in Alaska, in cases of the United States ws. the British schooners Dolphin, Anna Beck, Grace and Ada, charged with violating the law prohibiting the killing of fur seals in Alaskan waters, the Queen's Counsel, Mr. N. W. T. Drake, conceded that the Masters of the vessels named were taking fur seal in that portion of Queen's Counsel, Mr. N. W. T. Drake, con ceded that the Masters of the vessels named were taking fur seal in that portion o Behring Sea claimed by the United States But he filed a demurrer alleging that the Dis trict Court had no jurisdiction over the sub ject matter of the action, for the reason tha ject matter of the action, for the reason that the vessels were more than one marine league from the shore when seized, and the act was unconstitutional in that it restricted navigation of Behring Sea for sealing purposes. The court overruled this demurrer, and a judgment of forfeiture to the United States was entered against each of the vessels separately, with their teckles apparate furniture and agreement.

against each of the vessels separately, with their tackle, apparel, furniture and cargoes. No appeal was taken from this decision and the exclusive jurisdiction over these was as-serted, so Congressman Dunn, Chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fish eries, neid and was exercised by the legislative and executive branches of the Government. ANAWEWARD DISCOVERY. But that statement is controverted for other reasons. That court, waiving the inter-reasons. That court, waiving the international question and planting itse upon the face of the treaty coession and the acts of Congress, entere judgment of condemnation against the libelic vessels and cargoes and preparations were made to sell the condemned property. Three of the condemned vessels belonged to British owners, who appealed to their Government and obtained its intervention. At this stage of the case the awkward discovery was made that the act of Congress organizing a judicial system for Ajaska had omitted to provide for appeals from the District Court in civil causes and the judgments of that court, improvidently rendered in the belief that the Supreme Court at Washington would correct any error made by the lower court in respect of the construction of the statute under which the condemnstion was decreed, were found to be vessels and cargoes and preparations demnation was decreed, were found to be finalities. In this dilemma the President, by nnanties. In this different the resident, by an exercise of constitutional powers, released the British vessels and their cargoes without reason or condition and so gained time for an attempt to negotiate for an international closure of Behring Sea in behalf of the preservation of the seais, but refused to release the American vessels and cargoes, likewise on demned, under the belief that the Suprem Court would pass upon the legality of the con

Uncle Sam Firm.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31 .- So far as can be learned there is no new phase in the Behring Sea matter. The President's procla mation appears to have closed the history of mation appears to have closed the history of the case, and it cannot be learned that there has been any correspondence between the governments of the United States and Great Britain on the subject. According to the position taken by the United States Government, by Congressional declaration, the jurisdiction of the United States over the waters of the Alaskan side of Behring Sea is not admitted to be a subject for negotiations. Our Government simply asserts its absolute right and admitt the existence of no question for negotiation.

press and artists and during the hours from 8 tive people of the city availed themselves of opportunity offered. The collection is the property of Mr. Louis R. Ehrich, a wealthy and cultured New Yorker, and is loaned through his kindness and a desire to give the American public an opportunity to see what the old masters did for art. Mr. Ehrich is a graduate of Yale and afterward studied in Berlin, where he first became interested in the works of the Dutch and Fiemschools. He returned to New York and plunged into business and rapidly was compelled to go to the South of France to newed his interest in Dutch art, and by an accident started his present fine collect which it took seven years and much money to obtain. The pictures are genuine old mast whose authenticity have been vouched for and whose authenticity have been vouched for and tested by the most eminent authorities of Europe, and while they are not in all cases masterpieces, they are of great merit, and the widest interest as examples of different periods and types. The New York Evening Post in its criticism of the collection says: Mr. Ehrich soon became an enthusiast on the subject of Dutch pictures himself, and during seven years he traveled about from place to place seeking for them, and though in nine cases out of ten his journeys were fruitless, and where he had been led to expect to find gold he found only dross, he succeeded in getting together his present collection. It is a curious tact that he did not find a single one of the pictures in the Low Countries, but discovered most of them in out-of-the-way places in Italy and Germany.

The collection is such a uniformly good one, including as it does examples of most of the including as it does examples of most of the famous Dutch and Flemish masters, and many including as it does examples of most of the famous Dutch and Flemish masters, and many interesting examples of minor painters quite unknown outside of the permanent galleries in European museums, that it shows the possibility of still finding old masters, of these schools at least, in Europe. It shows that an intelligent collector who buys old masters because they are masters, and not for their names, regardless of the quality of the example so long as it is authentic, can yet find enough of them to make up a thoroughly representative gallery. There is no Van der Meer de Delft in Mr. Entich's collection, as there is no Rembrandt. However, that these can still be found is swidenced by the magnificent "Dor eur" of Rembrandt, which Mr. Schaus purchased a few years ago, and by Mr. Marquand's Rembrandt, Van Dyck, and Van der Meer de Delit. The most important pictures in the Ehrich collection, as much on account of their excellence as the celebrated names they bear, are an interior with a figure of a woman in a blue robe by Netscher, a picture that shows much of the finest quality of Terburg and Metsu, whom Netscher took as his models, a fine cattle piece by Adrian van de Velde; a Reubens representing peasants dancing around under the trees—a picture of good size and a characteristic example; a masterpiece by Abraham van Beyeran, who GOLCONDA, May 31.—'Squire Hopkins, idely known old resident of Columbus, a lit de veide; a Reubers representing peasants dancing around under the trees—a picture of good size and a characteristic example; a masteroiece by Abraham van Beyeran, who was called the "Raphaei of Fishes;" a beautiful interior with a woman dressing fish, by Gerrit Lundens—a picture especially handsome in general tone and as fine as a Feter de Hoock; three Van Goyens, of which one, showing a scene by the waterside, with fishermen in a boat in the fcreground and the quays and the buildings of a town running off in the distance to the right, is a superior example; a nne three-quarter length portrait of a young woman by Cornelius Van Haarlein, and a very remarkable work by Roger Von der Weyden. Other masters who are well represented are: Jan Wynants, J. de Wit, Lucas Ce Leyden, Justus Sustermans, David Ryckaert, wory remarkable work by Roger Von der Weyden. Other masters who are well represented are: Jan Wynnats, J. de Wit, Lucas Ge Leyden, Justus Sustermans, David Ryckaert, Ruysdael, and H. M. Rokes, or Zorg, as he is most commonly called; and there are one or more each of Van Ostader, Gerard Dou, Cuyp, Berghem, Dirk Hals, Maes, Pieter Neefs, Paul Potter, Terburg and the two Teniers.

Another art oritic, speaking of the Rubens pictures in the collection, asys: "Of the two Rubens pictures one is particularly charming. It is a small canvas in rich light tones, representing a dance of county folk beneath an old oak, in which a player on the pipe is seated. On the right, on an eminence, is a Flemish villa built in a semi-classical style of architecture; on the left hand corner is a dog, painted with that in attention to the strongest characteristics of canine nature which was true of the period. The joyous band of sixteen men and wemen is rushing about in an irregular circle, holding hands, and in some cases striving to kiss, in one case kissing. The bare shoulders, feet and legs of the bandsome Flemish women, the half bate torses of the men, are painted with that love of muscular effects, that breadth in the handling of the brush, that rictous delight in color which are Rubens himself. The movement in the figures is simply wonderful; the attitude unconstrained and varied; the effect neither classical nor ignoble like the peasant dances of Teniers and artists like Teniers. Physically speaking, these robust people are peasants, and their hearty animal enjoyment belongs to that class; but Rubens has given them notwithstanding, a dignity and real grandeur that belongs to his genius. The strongest instance is the woman who is caught as she stands fronting the spectator, her head to one side, almost in the center of the throng. She is a vigorous and very beautiful creature, who might be out from her surroundings and framed as as a portrait or for a type of blonde Flemish beauty. The painting of her hair, face and dress is marv

This rare collection should be seen by all lovers of art and those who wish to know something of the old school, for it is not likely such an opportunity for the study of examples of these great schools will occur in the West again in years, and it gives those who cannot go to Europe an opportunity to see at home what they would have to make a long journey to find. The management of the museum can not be commended too highly in the opportunity they afford.

Constable Hyde's Capture. Ellen Cifford, by her attorney, R. W. Goode ing for $187 against Dennis Clifford, her brother, with whom she had deposited her earnings as a servant from time to time. She finally decided to withdraw her money, but in this she was disappointed, hence the suit. The constable upon investigation ascertained that although Clifford was the owner of $2,000 in real estate the brother held it in his wife's name, The stable in the rear of his house was apparently unoccupied and the window was decorated with a notice: "For rent; apply to Cavender & Rowse." It occurred to the constable that Clifford had a horse and wagon, and accordingly went in search of it and located it in the alley between Twenty-second and Twenty-Third on Market street, and after learning that he had the right property drove to the office of Justice Spaulding. The alarm being given by a friend, Clifford started in pursuit, but soon found that he was too late. The property will be sold in ten days.

They will have a meeting in a few days and then if they agree to it, as every one thinks they will, the new company will immediately be formed and the consolidation will immediately be effected. The only thing that is delaying it now is the lack of consent by the stockholders.

morning. The origin of the devotion to the Sacred Heart dates back to June 17, 1889. On that day the Savior, so it is related, appeared to a very holy nun of the Visitation order named Margaret Mary and revealed to her that such adoration would be pleasing to him. The feast of the Sacred Heart established by the Roman Catholic Church is June 28, and on that day in the churches there will be an all-day exposition of the blessed sacrament. Relief watches to kneel in front of the tabernacle will be organized. During the month the services of consecrating families to the sacred heart will be performed in the churches. In order to have such consecration performed it is not necessary that the members of the family should be members of the League of the Sacred Heart.

Secretary Meade informed him that the Mayor was suffering from an acute ear-sche which had been much aggravated by the bad weather of yesterday and the exposure in the open air incident to a trip to defersion Barracks.

The suspense by this time was growing painful. The crowd had drifted into the Mayor's office and was hanging around.

After going over the list of those to be discharged Secretary Meade said: "That's all right; fire 'em."

"But how about the appointments to fill the vacancies?" asked the superintendent.

"That we will have to leave to His Honor the Mayor; or rather, we will have to wait until the Mayor approves of the selections Mr. Burnet has made." replied Mr. Meade.

Public Improvements.

The Board of Public Improvements held egular meeting this morning at 11 o'clock. A large number of bids on contracts for treet and alley work were examined and the contracts awarded. The Committee on Electric Lighting reported that after consulting with the City Counsellor they had come to the decision that in regard to transferring the contract of Charles Sutter the board had no invisidation in the matter.

The question of putting in a ten-foot public drinking fountain at the intersection of Jefferson avenue and Chippewa street was discussed. The plan is to put in a ten-foot basin of cement or stone to cost about $400 with an ornamental imp post in the center which will be used in future for an electric light.

UP WITH ITS DOCKET.

The Court of Appeals Has Nothing to Do-The Court of Appeals handed down seven decisions this morning and now has pending before it but five cases, which will be decided next Tuesday. The sight of a court that is up with its docket, that has disposed of all its to be seen. Prob United States that has at least there is none in a large ous district were there is much i to do, at least there is none it a large city or a populous district were there is much litigation. The Kansas City Court of Appeals is months behind, and the State Supreme Court has two or three years work before it. When the Court of Appeals was established the Supreme Court referred but a few cases to it, and they were promptly taken hold of and disposed of. Since then the Judges have endeavored to keep up with the business and they have succeeded admirably. Judges Rombauer, Thompson and Biggs, who constitute the court, are probably as hard workers as can be found on any bench. Every second Tuesday they hand down a bunch of from fifteen to thirty opinions, and each one represents a large amount lons, and each one represents a large amount decided, but in the Court of Appeals the cases are decided generally within six months, and it is not infrequent for them to go through within four. Such expedition in matters of law stands alone in the history of litigation and shows that those who administer the law appreciate the value of bringing litigation to a speedy end. But unfortunately the Judges, as a rule, do not work as hard or as steadily and few of them as carefully as Judges Rombauer, Thompson and Biggs, who can enjoy their approaching vacation which comes after a year of unremitting labor.

just as it is starting out on a long trip and opening with Brooklyn, its mishap falls with particular force on the possessed whom they could put in the box with any degree of confidence were King and Chamberlain. Without a pitcher the strong est of teams is apt to lose to the very weakest. King cannot do all the work, and yet there is no good man to substitute in Chamberlain's place. Hudson, it was hoped, might round to all right, but the season has been so backward as yet that he can scarcely be in condition. Devlin put in and pitched regularly he may prove valuable man. The mishap may be the making of him, just as Bushong's injury made Jack Boyle, who, previous to that time, was considered of little use. Certain it is that the and if neither Hudson nor Devlin pan out it is good pitchers are extremely rare, and it is next to impossible to obtain them unless a valuable find is accidentally secured out of a minor association. Unless the Browns are strengthened in the box they are apt to return home away behind in the race.

The Browns had the tables turned on then n the afternoon game at Brooklyn yesterday and lost by a score of 9 to 7. Ten chances to one the Canadian authorities will have to tender an apology to the United States for an insuit offered to the stars and stripes on board the Bridgewater while under seizure at Shelbourne, N. S. The administration of the Department of Customs here has been characterized for many years by an evident desire to embarrass as much as possible trade between the two nations. Large numbers of illegal seizures have been made, among others the Ayr seizures. In this case the law has been enforced to the very letter and the spirit of legislation quite forgotten. No effort, whatever, has been made to maintain friendly intercourse, but instead a castiron policy has been carried out in a rigorous manner, bound, from the very nature of things, to incense popular feeling in the United States against Canada. The Canadian Government held the seized ship for fifty-seven days. Then the Minister of Customs made a proposition to the owner (Capt. Alian) that the vessel would be released on condition that she took a clearance to a foreign port and left the country after paying all costs of seizure and giving a written abandonment of all claims upon the Government of any of its officers arising out of the sefaure. This proposition was indignantly rejected. The seizure continued until October 19—eighty-one days after—when the vessel was unconditionally released. Capt. Allen at once demanded compensation, but the Canadian Government ignored his representations. The Government med being his case to the American Government med the seizure itself. He did this in the hope that the Canadian authorities would grant him an immediate settlement without forcing him to await the termination of international negotiations. He came to Ottawa, submitted his case and pressed for a settlement but on effect. He then represented to the Government of the United States that while the B
